Woman found dead in stairwell

Two residents of 117 Albro Lake Dr. in Dartmouth look on while police sealed off the apartment building as part of their investigation into the death of a woman found stabbed inside the complex. An autopsy was scheduled for Sunday afternoon.

 Neighbour says victim
 had several stab wounds

Police are investigating a suspicious death in north Dartmouth after neighbours say a woman was found dead in an apartment building with multiple stab wounds.

Around 10:15 p.m. Saturday night police responded to reports of a commotion at 117 Albro Lake Rd. and found the body of a 33-year-old woman in the apartment stairwell, where she was pronounced dead.

"I seen a girl upside down on our stairs face-up, eyes open, and her stomach looked like somebody had stabbed her a bunch of times," Shelby Decoste said on Sunday.

"It was really bad."

Another neighbour who lives in a nearby building said around 10 p.m. she heard faint gunshots coming from the apartment building, the kind of sound a handgun would make.

Decoste, who said she lived in the apartment above where the woman was found, said she didn't hear gunshots or anything unusual Saturday night.

The death is being treated as suspicious and Halifax po-lice's major crime unit is investigating.

"There are still (identification) members at the scene, and they'll be there into the evening hours, processing that scene," said Sgt. Greg Robertson of Halifax Regional Police.

Robertson said the woman has been identified, but the name won't be released until her family has been notified.

Decoste, who moved into the building last year, said the neighbourhood is known for violence.

"I mean I'm not feeling the sickest about where I live at the present moment, but other than that things are going to happen like this," Decoste said.

"You kind of expect it around here."

Robertson said police had no reason to believe there was "any immediate threat" to the safety of those in the area.

"There's going to be a heavy police presence until we pursue a lead and identify a suspect," Robertson said. HALEY RYAN/METRO

Former editor, politician

Jane Purves dies of cancer at 63

Jane Purves THE CANADIAN PRESS FILE

Former Nova Scotia cabinet minister and veteran newspaper editor Jane Purves has died at 63.

Premier Darrell Dexter confirmed the death in a statement Saturday night. She died of cancer.

"She was well-known and well-liked across Nova Scotia because she could be counted on to call things as she saw them. I feel privileged to have known and worked with her during her time in politics," Dexter said in a statement.

Progressive Conservative Leader Jamie Baillie said in a statement that Purves served the province with "passion and integrity."

Purves started with the Chronicle-Herald in 1974, rising through the ranks to become managing editor before she jumped into provincial politics.

She was elected to the Nova Scotia legislature in 1999 and became a minister in Conservative premier John Hamm's government.

She served as health and education minister before being defeated in the 2003 election.

Purves was editor of the Halifax Daily News briefly after she exited politics. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hiring plan falls short

Payroll rebate.

Nova Scotia Business Inc. hits about half of its job-creation goal

A payroll rebate program intended to create up to 12,000 jobs in Nova Scotia has generated about half that figure, a provincial Crown agency says.

Nova Scotia Business Inc. had hoped to hit that target by offering payroll rebates to companies as an incentive to hire.

But the business development agency says the rebate program only helped create about 6,000 jobs after companies started receiving the money between 2002 until 2007, the first five years it was in place.

Rebates were offered to 50 companies, usually over a three- to five-year time frame. Of the $142 million in rebates offered, about $53 million was spent, Nova Scotia Business Inc. says.

The agency provided its figures last week after The Canadian Press requested an interview based on records it obtained that showed 5,500 jobs were generated.

In and out

Despite falling short of its job targets, the rebate program has been successful in luring private investment to the province, said Peter MacAskill, vice-president of Nova Scotia Business Inc.

"Other jurisdictions are offering much larger incentives to attract international investment," he said in an email. "The payroll rebate tool gets NSBI in the door and at the table."

Donald Savoie, a professor of public administration at the University of Moncton, said the global recession should be considered when assessing success.

Still, the results could have been better, Savoie said.

"Fifty per cent? I would have thought the number would be higher," he said.

'A need to help and do the right thing': Capt. MacNeil

Atlantic Canada Firefighter Memorial Service. Local firefighters honour those who have died

 HALEY RYAN
haley.ryan@metronews.ca

On a warm, bright Sunday, more than 100 firefighters followed a group of priests and bagpipers down Chebucto Road in time to the beat of a drum.

The firefighters walked to St. Agnes Catholic Church to attend the second annual Atlantic Canada Firefighter Memorial Service at 2 p.m. which honoured current firefighters and remembered those who have died.

Monica Gates, 77, took pictures of her son and grandson marching in their dark-blue uniforms.

"I'm just bubbly and excited," Gates said, adding her son has been in the service for 30 years, her grandson two, and a brother and nephew were firefighters as well.

"It's been in the family for years," she added. "I'm proud, very proud."

According to the Halifax Regional Fire website, there are 1,129 career and volunteer firefighters who operate out of 59 stations in the region.

Quoted

"We're a family. We have to rely on each other, so it creates a strong bond."

Gates said she does worry about her family "very much" when they go to work, and they don't really talk about why they rush into burning buildings day after day.

"They know they have to go in and save lives, and that's why they joined.

That's what they're there for," Gates said.

One firefighter carried a framed photo of Chris Boyle. Boyle was the 39-year-old volunteer firefighter who died in an unrelated industrial accident nearly two weeks ago in Bayers Lake.

Capt. Wendell MacNeil said they would like to continue the walk and memorial service every year to "pay tribute to the people that have gone before us."

"We have traditions, lots of traditions in the fire department and we try to carry that on," MacNeil said, adding that while the memorial is a time to remember those who have died, it also brings a lot of support to families in the fire service.

Firefighters make strong bonds with those they work with because of the dangerous nature of the job, MacNeil said, but added that many don't see their job as something they could just walk away from.

"I guess it's just a wish, and maybe even a need, to help and do the right thing," MacNeil said.

Search continues for missing boater in Cape Breton

Police in Cape Breton took over the search Sunday for the body of a man missing since his boat overturned and were also investigating witness reports of an altercation on the water.

RCMP Sgt. Mark MacPherson said there had been no trace of Phillip Joseph Boudreau, 43, of Petit-de-Grat, since his four-metre-long open boat was found near the mouth of the community's harbour early Saturday.

MacPherson said after a daylong search officials with the Joint Rescue Coordination Centre in Halifax had turned responsibility over to the RCMP. He said

No comment

RCMP Sgt. Mark MacPherson wouldn't comment on whether arrests or charges were being considered.

military searchers doubt the missing man had survived the mishap given the time elapsed since the search began.

"They thought that window had closed," he said. "Therefore, the RCMP took over."

MacPherson added a ground search was continuing and an RCMP dive recovery team would also be in the water for as long as conditions would allow.

He said police were also investigating reports from witnesses of "some sort" of an altercation involving Boudreau's boat and a fishing vessel.

"We began to investigate further and take statements and that continues at this time."

The search would continue as long as weather and sea conditions were favourable, according to Boudreau.

"I anticipate us being here for several days — two or more days both on the land and on the water," he said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Highway 103. Driver killed after car and truck collide

The RCMP say a man is dead following a two-vehicle collision on Highway 103.

Police say an RCMP officer was on his way to work around 7:45 a.m. Sunday when he came upon a crash that involved a Honda Civic and tractor trailer.

The accident occurred east of Exit 10 in the Martins River area.

Police say the driver of the car was pronounced dead at the scene, while the truck driver was treated for his injuries by paramedics and released.

The name of the victim has not been released.

Crime. Paramedic accused of sexually assaulting senior

A paramedic faces sexual-assault charges after RCMP say he attacked an elderly woman in her home.

On May 28, RCMP received a complaint from a 71-year-old woman alleging she had been sexually assaulted in her home.

An investigation revealed that on May 26, a man living in the home was receiving medical treatment from an Emergency Health Services paramedic.

Police say a second paramedic escorted the woman to another room, saying he was going to check her vital signs. The woman was then allegedly assaulted.

On further investigation, police say the same paramedic sexually assaulted the woman on Sept. 1, 2012, while she was being transported by ambulance to hospital for treatment.

A 47-year-old man from Kings County faces two charges of sexual assault and two charges of breach of trust. METRO

He says the contributions will be based on the days he was absent from the House in April, when he was on vacation that it might not result in the recovery of any money since MacDonald abruptly resigned Wednesday.

Members from all three parties voted in favour of the motion, pending legal advice about whether it has the ability to dock the pay of retired politicians.

Corbett put forward the motion to dock MacDonald's salary for the 20 days he was absent without permission.

But he later said he had been told by the Speaker's Office that it was unlikely they could demand the salary.

Hundreds take time to tidy up McNabs Island

Everything from an old TV and a full can of paint, to birth-control pills and a sealed evidence bag that had been ripped open, were among the items found during Sunday's annual McNabs Island cleanup.

The Friends of McNabs Island Society says 200 volunteers took part in the cleanup and 400 bags of garbage and recyclables were filled.

Besides the aforementioned items, also found were winter toques, farm-animal figurines, a Santa Claus ornament, fake flowers, footwear, shotgun shells, a metal bedpan and a toy lobster.

The society says there were also plenty of Tim Hortons cups, plastic tampon applicators, and plastic and styrofoam sheets.

"In spite of the fact that the HRM sewage treatment plants are operational, plastic garbage from the sewer system still continues to plague the beaches of this beautiful provincial park," a release from the society states.

This was the 22nd cleanup of McNabs Island. METRO

Tax ‘amendment’ will cost insurers $1 billion

GST bonanza. Owed amounts date back to a 2005 Finance Department release implemented in 2010

Canada's insurance industry faces a $1-billion GST bill at the end of this month, thanks to a federal tax move critics say smacks of a “banana republic.”

The massive tax hit applies to some financial services that insurers say were never before subject to GST.

The GST now owed is retroactive seven years, back to 2005, when the federal Finance Department issued a news release saying it planned to amend tax legislation — something it didn't get around to implementing until 2010.

Critics say that apart from the body blow to the books of domestic insurers, the “massively distortive” tax grab sends a signal to global investors that Canada is no place to do business. That message, they say, challenges any claim the Harper government is a tax-cutter and a good steward of the economy.

Finance Minister Jim Flaherty with Prime Minister Stephen Harper in March. A massive retroactive GST ruling from the Finance Department has investors fuming. THE CANADIAN PRESS

“I have lost count of the number of times that global tax directors have used the words ‘banana republic’ when I describe this legislation to them,” says Michael Firth, a tax partner at PricewaterhouseCoopers Canada, and chief among the critics.

“They don't believe it. They go, ‘You're kidding me? Can they really do this?’”

For its part, the Finance Department says it hasn't changed GST legislation at all, but rather clarified rules that were poorly drafted when the GST was born in 1991.

The slow-motion train wreck began with an obscure Tax Court of Canada ruling in 2003, in which the judge sided with insurer State Farm against the Canada Revenue Agency.

The company successfully argued the GST does not apply to certain common financial transactions, and therefore it owed no money to the taxman.

The Finance Department issued a statement and background document on Nov. 17, 2005, saying it planned to amend GST legislation to effectively overturn the judge's ruling, warning the amendments would be retroactive to the date of the release.

Controversial draft legislation appeared Jan. 26, 2007, and the measure was finally passed in an omnibus budget bill in 2010, whacking certain kinds of financial services with GST retroactively.

Veterans. Former soldiers worry wounded military survivors will be forgotten

In 2010, former corporal John Lowe finished his tour in the killing fields of Kandahar.

His generation of soldiers has a myriad of money and recovery programs, but checking yourself into one is known within the ranks as “spin dry.”

It can be the kiss of career death for a soldier to put their hands up and say they have a problem with the horrors they've witnessed.

“It's the culture; the culture is totally different,” said Lowe. “One of our mottos is suffer in silence. That's what's honourable. That's what we're taught.”

Lowe came home alone, a month ahead of his buddies in Charlie Company, 1st Battalion Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry.

Lowe is part of a group of Canadian soldiers and veterans, many of them struggling with post-traumatic stress, who arrived in London Sunday after a gruelling six-day cycling ride from Paris.

They took part in an event put on by the British-based charity Help for Heroes, which gathered 300 riders from the United Kingdom, Canada and the U.S., including a number of amputees who lost limbs in Afghanistan and Iraq.

The Harper government takes great pride in saying it has poured an additional $130 million into improving the system of military medical care since being elected, including an often-trumpeted $11.4 million for mental health.

But according to accounts from soldiers past and present, it is still a system of stifling bureaucracy, occasional leadership indifference, but most of all, prejudice.

Dave Penasse, a former armoured vehicle driver who served in Bosnia, says he's concerned that as the war in Afghanistan becomes a distant memory for the public, people will forget about the 2,047 who were wounded physically and mentally.

“It is sad to think about, but if a country is not at war, there's less media attention (on the military), less and less and less, and then there's none,” he said. “People forget so easily what these people have been through.”

Saskatchewan tornado hunter says chaser deaths are rare, but storm pattern was 'unprecedented'

 MORGAN MODJESKI
Metro in Saskatoon

Three of North America's best-known storm chasers were among 10 killed after a tornado hit the El Reno area of Oklahoma City during rush hour on Friday.

Tim Samaras, called the Wayne Gretzky of storm chasing, his son Paul Samaras and storm chaser Carl Young were all killed when an EF3 tornado, with winds up to 165 m.p.h., barrelled into the area.

Saskatchewan tornado

hunter Greg Johnson was chasing the same tornado that killed the three men.

"Is it dangerous? It sure is. We're putting ourselves into the danger zone, but the thing is, we have very sophisticated technology and we have a really good understanding of how storms behave, so this is a very rare incidence," said Johnson.

Johnson said the tornado made a 90-degree left turn and headed north in a pattern that he called "almost unprecedented."

"We got caught in the same storm and we were basically in a different location, but in the same situation as Tim," said Johnson.

He said Tim Samaras was one of the best storm chasers in the field, adding he had a chance to visit with Tim and his team two weeks ago in Texas.

Mayors had secret nuclear waste talks: Activists

Municipal leaders in the Ontario region that is home to one of the world's largest nuclear power plants are facing allegations they discussed proposed storage facilities for radioactive waste in secret because they feared damaging their electoral fortunes.

In a formal complaint to Bruce County, two activist groups also say the mayors may have violated provincial laws by failing to document and publicize years of meetings with nuclear officials.

Documents show the eight county mayors met 16 times with the Nuclear Waste Management Organization and Ontario Power Generation to discuss a facility for radioactive waste.

Informal notes were kept for only eight of the meetings held between 2009 and 2012.

In early 2009, discussions also turned to finding a willing host community for high-level radioactive waste. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Terror. U.S. and Russia 'need to work more closely' on security: Congressman

The head of a U.S. congressional delegation said Sunday that its meetings in Russia showed there was "nothing specific" that could have helped prevent the Boston Marathon bombings, but that the two countries need to work more closely on joint security threats.

Dana Rohrabacher, a California Republican congressman who led the six-member delegation, described discussions with Russian parliamentarians and security officials as productive.

Some of the meetings, he said, were made possible by American actor Steven Seagal.

Seagal, who attended the news conference in the U.S. Embassy, is well connected in Russia. He met with Russian President Vladimir Putin in March, and last week paid a visit to Ramzan Kadyrov, the strongman who rules Chechnya. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Heavy rains. Disaster warnings over central Europe flooding

Authorities in parts of central Europe issued disaster warnings and scrambled to reinforce flood defences Sunday as rivers swelled by days of heavy rain threatened to burst their banks.

Several people have died or are missing in the floods in Germany, the Czech Republic and Switzerland since Thursday.

Czech officials warned that the waters of the Vltava river could reach critical levels in Prague late Sunday. Interim Mayor Tomas Hudecek said authorities were considering whether to shut down parts of the capital's subway network and called on people not to travel to city.

In the nearby city of Trebenice a woman was found dead in the rubble after a summer cottage collapsed due to the raging water, Czech public television reported.

Czech Prime Minister Petr Necas said 200 soldiers have been deployed so far to help local authorities.

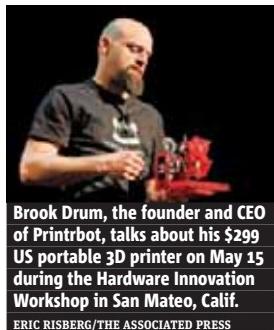

In Germany at least four people have died or are missing. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The next industrial revolution is coming to a printer near you

3D printing. Emerging technology could disrupt mass manufacturing by changing how and when things are made

Invisalign, a San Jose company, uses 3D printing to make each mouthful of customized, transparent braces. Mackenzies Chocolates, a confectioner in Santa Cruz, uses a 3D printer to pump out chocolate moulds. And earlier this year, Cornell University researchers used a 3D printer, along with injections of a special collagen gel, to create a human-shaped ear.

Once a science-fiction fantasy, three-dimensional printers are popping up everywhere from the desks of home hobbyists to U.S. air force drone research centres. The machines, generally the size of a microwave oven and costing $400 US to more than $500,000 US, extrude layers of plastics or other materials, including metal, to create 3D objects with moving parts.

Users are able to make just about anything they like: iPad stands, guitars, jewelry, even guns. But experts warn this cool innovation could soon turn controversial — because of safety concerns but also the potential for the technology to alter economies that rely on manufacturing.

Try this at home

"We're on the verge of the next industrial revolution, no doubt about it," said Dartmouth College business professor Richard D'Aveni. "In 25 years, entire industries are going to disappear. Countries relying on mass manufacturing are going to find themselves with no revenues and no jobs."

Ebook price-fixing. Apple, U.S. Justice Department to square off in antitrust case

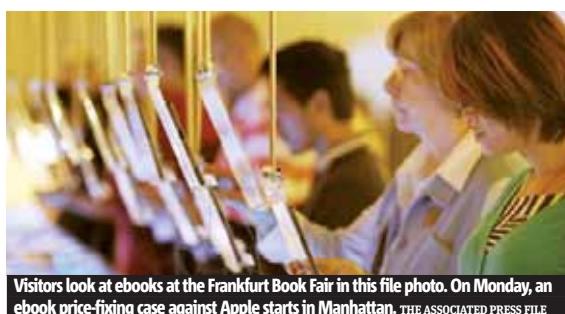

In a civil case where the words of Steve Jobs play prominently, the U.S. government and Apple Inc. are set to square off over allegations that Apple conspired with the country's largest book publishers to make consumers pay more for electronic books.

U.S. District Judge Denise Cote is scheduled to begin hearing the price-fixing case Monday in federal court in Manhattan. The trial stems from an antitrust lawsuit brought last year by the Justice Department, which accused Apple of helping hatch the scheme at a meeting with publishers in 2009 as it was preparing to launch the iPad.

Its purpose was to force Seattle-based Amazon.com, the marketer of Kindle ebook readers, to raise the $9.99 US price it had set for the most popular ebook titles because that was substantially below their hardcover prices, the government says.

The government has alleged the scheme cost consumers tens of millions of dollars, and argues that part of the proof is Jobs' own account of the arrangement. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Policy change

Want a coffee and a smoke? Not at Starbucks

Starbucks customers will now have to stamp out their cigarettes before approaching the cafés.

The Seattle-based chain has banned smoking within 25 feet (7.6 metres) of its stores. A Starbucks spokeswoman says the intent is to expand the indoor no-smoking policy to the outdoor seating areas.

The policy shouldn't cause a big difference in many areas that already ban smoking within a certain distance of a business entrance. The rule will apply to Starbucks' 7,000 cafés regardless of whether they have outdoor seating areas. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARGING A CHILD FOR CHILD PORN?

A 14-year-old Preston boy — a child by any definition — has been charged with possessing, making and distributing child pornography, crimes punishable by up to 10 years in prison.

A child charged with child pornography? Is this who we intended child pornography laws to protect our children from?

Let's start with what we know, at least according to the police. There was a party on April 5. Kids were drinking. At some point, a 15-year-old girl performed what was described as "a consensual sex act" on a 14-year-old male.

The boy used his cellphone to videotape the act in progress and later posted it to a social media site where he "tagged" the video to make it easier for others to discover.

Three days later, an adult alerted police about it. The department's internet child exploitation unit launched an investigation, seized the boy's cellphone and eventually arrested him.

If the police version is accurate, then the boy is guilty of a cruel, reckless, dangerous, stupid and perhaps criminal act. But is it reasonable to describe it as child pornography?

That law's purpose was to deal with the sexual exploitation of minors by adults. It defines child pornography as material "the dominant characteristic of which is the depiction, for a sexual purpose," of someone under 18 engaged in, or appearing to engage in, explicit sexual activity.

While this video apparently shows explicit sexual activity, its purpose is less clear. Was the teen posting it, as a conventional child pornographer might, for the sexual gratification of others? Or was he simply boasting, brainless-teenager-like, about his sexual prowess.

Neither is acceptable. But they are different. And using the blunt bludgeon of child-pornography laws in a case like

A fair description?

If the police version is accurate, the boy is guilty of a cruel, reckless, dangerous, stupid and perhaps criminal act. But is it reasonable to describe it as child pornography?

this cheapens the crime.

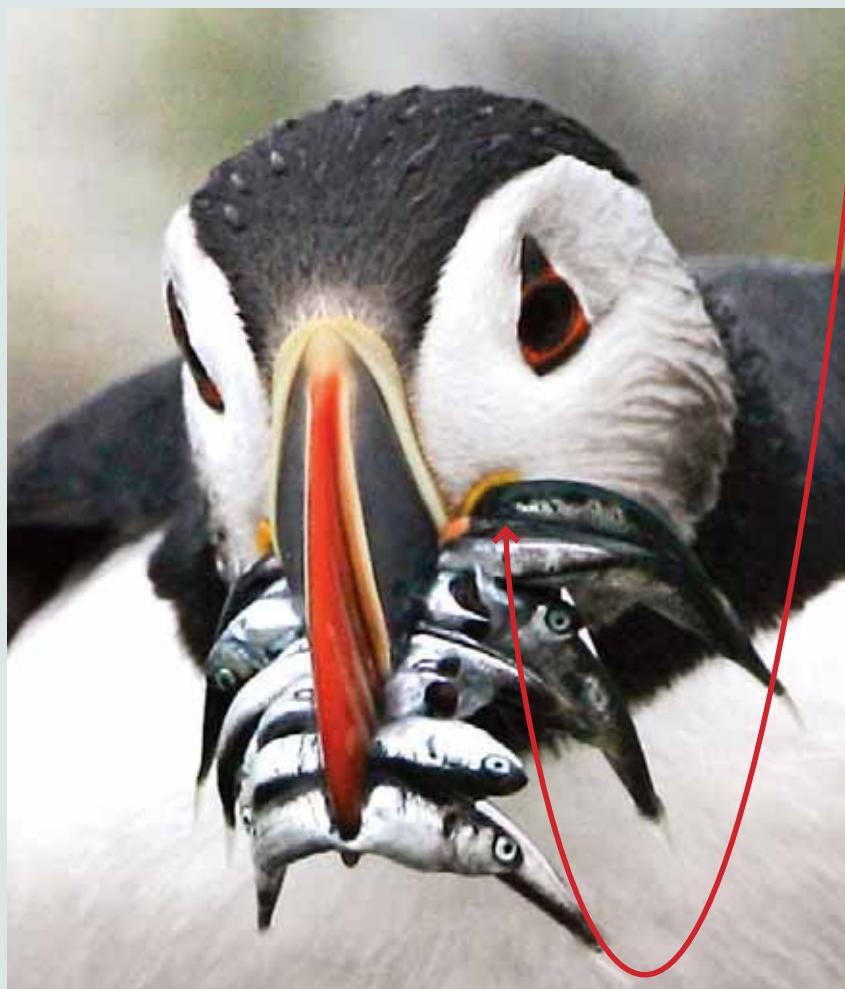

As Michael Unger, co-director of the Dalhousie Resilience Research Centre, explained to CTV, "We need a way of addressing this that doesn't turn reckless acts by teenagers into categorizing this young man as a pedophile."

Nova Scotia Justice Minister Ross Landry's proposed new law to criminalize the distribution of "intimate images" without consent — regardless of the ages of those involved — seems like a far saner approach.

It's unfortunate it wasn't available in this case — or in the Rehteah Parsons tragedy.

What plagues the puffin?

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FILE

East coast seabirds dying of starvation

This Atlantic puffin is seen with a beak crammed with fish to feed its young, but the population is at risk in the Gulf of Maine. The comical-looking seabirds have been dying of starvation and losing body weight, possibly because of shifting fish populations as ocean temperatures rise, according to scientists.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Butterfish too fat to feed the kids

Instead of feeding their young primarily herring, puffin parents were giving them large numbers of butterfish, a more southerly fish that's becoming more abundant in the Gulf or perhaps more accessible to seabirds because they've moved higher up in the water column.

But the chicks ended up starving to death because the butterfish were too big and round for them to swallow says Steve Kress, director of the National Audubon Society's seabird restoration program. Piles of uneaten butterfish were found next to some of the dead birds.

The amount of herring in the puffin's diet has been falling by about five per cent a year. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

In John Mazerolle's column He Says, he talks about how whiny people can be on airplanes and how annoying it can be.

He goes on to say he loves flying.

I know some people are annoying needlessly, but there are some people like me who hate flying due to mental illness.

Will and Jaden Smith teaming up for After Earth has us thinking of other real-life parent-child movies

Box office

After Earth, the futuristic caper starring father-and-son team Will Smith and Jaden Smith, opened to $27 million, good for third place. With its supercharged muscle cars, Fast & Furious 6 raced to first place at the box office for the second consecutive weekend. The magic-heist thriller Now You See Me exceeded industry expectations to debut in second place with $28.1 million.

SCENE 2

The actors, films

Melvin and Mario Van Peebles

Sweet Sweetback's Baadasssss Song (1971)

Their ages

39, 14

Their roles

Melvin plays an entertainer at a brothel falsely accused by "The Man." Mario plays his younger self in a fairly graphic introductory scene where he loses his virginity to a prostitute. Thanks, dad!

The results

Even though what was shot very nearly qualifies as child pornography, it apparently wasn't traumatic. Mario grew up idolizing and often working with his father. He became a filmmaker himself, making New Jack City and Baadasssss! — an account of the making of his father's pioneering black cinema classic. Mario even stars as his wildly charismatic, cigar-chomping, lady-killer pop.

Ryan and Tatum O'Neal

Paper Moon (1973)

32, 10

Ryan is a charismatic con man in the Depression-era South who collects fraudulent fees from rubes for bibles. Tatum plays a little girl who may be his daughter. She proves a grifting prodigy.

Ryan, often a wooden rent-a-hunk, was atypically alive and hilarious in this Peter Bogdanovich comedy. Ditto, for that matter, Tatum, who became the youngest-ever Oscar winner. She did The Bad News Bears but struggled through an adult career. Ryan, meanwhile, did two more films of major note (Barry Lyndon and The Driver), but soon returned to crap films. Their relationship became strained. Tatum alleged that Ryan hit on her at Farrah Fawcett's funeral.

Henry and Jane Fonda

On Golden Pond (1981)

76, 44

Henry is a crotchety, terminally sweaty old-timer who is estranged from his daughter, played by Jane. This isn't that far from the truth, except that Henry wasn't married to Katharine Hepburn.

The two were famously estranged, despite him being, like her, a liberal — back when such a thing wasn't cool. The film helped them patch things up, just as what happens in the film. Henry died soon after winning his first Oscar, which Jane accepted on his behalf.

Martin and Charlie Sheen

Wall Street (1987)

47, 22

Charlie is an upstart who gets associated with the wrong scene, while his father scowls. They also acted in this movie together.

The two would reunite, for about 10 seconds, in Hot Shots Part Deux, in a scene that parodies Apocalypse Now: Passing by each other on ships, they simultaneously stand and proclaim, "Loved you in Wall Street!"

Sylvester and Sage Stallone

Rocky V (1990)

44, 14

Sly is a slow mumblemouth who solved the Cold War, but is still stuck penniless in a miserable South Philly neighbourhood because his brother-in-law Paulie is an idiot. Sage is his resentful son who gets an earring.

Sage took over the role of Rocky Jr. from someone actually named Rocky Krakoff. He didn't get great reviews, but neither did the film. Still, he acted again with his dad in Daylight, and appears in Vincent Gallo's Promises Written in Water, which Gallo won't let anyone see. Last year, Sage died of a heart attack at 36 years old.

Jon Voight and Angelina Jolie

Lara Croft: Tomb Raider (2001)

63, 26

Jolie is a buxom archaeologist who does all the things that Indiana Jones can't, like have breasts. Voight is her dead father who she meets in an alternate dimension.

Jolie and Voight have had a bumpy relationship. They reconnected as her career exploded, then "broke up" again, then came back together after her mother's death. Still, Voight said he found out about her double mastectomy with everyone else.

Beyoncé certainly knows how to deal with those pesky pregnancy rumours: The singer, who has been plagued with speculation she's expecting for the past month, posted a photo to her Tumblr blog from her recent visit to Germany showing her perched

We all know it's important to re-apply sunscreen, but carrying around a whole, full-sized bottle of sunscreen can be cumbersome. Lighten up your load with this simple tip: Re-use a plastic pill container as a smaller sunscreen bottle. Wash the pill bottle and fill it with sunscreen—it's the perfect size to use on the go and handy if you carry different sorts of sunscreen. It's that easy and it's great for camp, cottage, or taking to the beach. CAROLINE FERNANDEZ/YUMMYMUMMYCLUB.CA

When travelling with your infant who screams because he or she hates the car, make sure you have a pile of soft toys stacked up beside you on the passenger seat. At red

Her body is her body, and it's meant to dance, not quit

Staggering statistic.
Six out of 10 girls avoid activities because they don't like their bodies. We as parents must help to lower that number

ALI MARTELL
yummymummyclub.ca

I took ballet for 10 years. From the time I was two years old until I was 12, I spent several days a week perfecting my pliés and piroettes and arabesques and revoltades.

I might have even been good, too, but I'll never know. Because I quit.

Because I was a stupid pre-teenager. It was too hard, too time-consuming. And there was a little not-allowed-to-wear-underpants-underneath-the-leotard situation.

But mostly, I quit because of my body. At age 12, my body began changing — it was too large in some places and too small in other places. I was, like many girls are before they grow into their women-bodies, the bodies that will one day grow their babies — a wee bit awkward. Apparently, and unfortunately, I'm not alone in this. Six out of 10 girls avoid activities because they feel badly about the way they look.

When my oldest daughter was born and I heard that lovely "It's a girl!" announcement, the first thing I said was, "God, I can't wait to put her in a tutu." And I stayed true to my word. She was in a tutu almost before she could speak.

At 12, she is my mini me. She looks almost exactly like me; she's built almost exactly like me. Once, just once, we had the conversation I worried about the minute I became the mama to a daughter:

"Mama, I hate my body."

"What?"

"My friends are all so tall and thin. I am short and stout, like the little teapot."

"We are all built differently, my love. You are the perfect you that you can be."

Ballerinas of the future need positive role models at home. iStock

"Hrm. I don't know if you are right."

"Do you exercise?"

"Of course. I bike and swim and dance and play basketball and walk to and from school and jump on the trampoline and I'm thinking of trying out for track and field."

"Do you eat a lot of foods that are good for you?"

"Of course. I love peppers and broccoli and green beans and artichokes and asparagus."

"Then that is all that matters. If you treat your body the way it should be treated, your body will grow into what it should be — a perfect woman."

I don't want her to quit like I did. She's so good. Six out of 10 girls avoiding activities.

Six out of 10! I don't want my daughter to be one of the six. Research shows, though, that when girls have positive role models at home — often mom — they tend to be less likely to let their anxieties get the better of them. Her body does amazing things — she can pop and lock and shake and shimmy and whatever those young kids are doing these days. And there are moments when she's on that dance floor, and I'm sure that she's flying.

I want her to know that bodies come in all shapes and sizes. It's my job as her mother to remind her of this and to not make the same mistakes that kept me from pursuing something I loved, something I could have been amazing at.

Her body is her body, and it's a body that's meant to dance. To fly. To be celebrated. To wear a tutu if she wants.

Not to quit.

What's black and sugary and delicious all over? Rice pudding

Judith Finlayson professes a love for the taste and texture of rice, whether it's brown, red or Thai black sticky rice.

Though the cookbook author hasn't been able to duplicate a sweet concoction of mangoes and sticky rice she sampled while travelling in Thailand, this recipe for black sticky rice pudding is one of her favourites and she has included it in her most recent cookbook, The Complete Gluten-Free Whole Grains Cookbook.

"It is so easy and so good."

Thai black sticky rice is available in Asian markets. If desired, you can cook the rice in your rice cooker on the brown rice setting. The recipe calls for mangoes, but other fruits like strawberries, kiwifruit or peaches are also tasty.

This dessert is suitable for those following a vegan food plan.

Ingredients

Makes 6 servings

375 ml (1 1/2 cups) water
175 ml (3/4 cup) cooked Thai black sticky rice
1 can (400 ml/14 oz) coconut milk
125 ml (1/2 cup) packed Demerara or other raw cane sugar
2 ml (1/2 tsp) salt
250 ml (1 cup) sliced strawberries or kiwifruit or chopped peaches or mango
50 ml (1/4 cup) toasted shredded sweetened coconut
Finely chopped mint (optional)

1. In a bowl, combine water and rice. Set aside to soak for at least 4 hours or overnight.

2. When you're ready to cook, transfer rice and soaking water to a heavy pot with a tight-fitting lid. Bring to a rapid boil over medium heat. Reduce heat to low and simmer until rice is tender, 30 to 45 minutes. (Don't lift the lid.)

3. In a saucepan, combine coconut milk, raw sugar and salt. Bring to a boil over medium heat and cook, stirring, until sugar dissolves. Stir in cooked rice and cook, stirring, until thickened, about 10 minutes. Transfer to a serving bowl and chill, if desired. When you're ready to serve, top with fruit and garnish with shredded coconut and mint, if using.

Doctor that dessert: It's DIY ice cream time

Sometimes it takes the mind of an eight-year-old boy to come up with a brilliant idea. At least when it comes to ice cream.

"We need to make our ice cream and sell it this summer," Parker began with rapid-fire excitement.

Except that neither I nor most parents have the time (nor kids the patience) to truly make ice cream from scratch. And as my son had so wonderfully demonstrated, low, caramel and fudge fish). And then he got really quiet for a moment, which generally is just a pre-storm calm.

the fun isn't in making the ice cream base, but in testing all manner of whacky-delicious things you can flavour it with.

The solution? Doctored ice cream. Using the above instructions, do the best you can to create your favourite flavours. Mine and my son's were Rice Krispies Treat ice cream and Quadruple Chocolate Eclair ice cream, but feel free to make your own.

Rules

- Start with quality ice cream in basic flavours (vanilla, chocolate)
- Choose mix-ins that either are or can be cut into bite-size pieces
- Go for contrast with your mix-ins, something crunchy with something soft
- Think beyond sweet (potato chips, corn chips, peanuts, cashews, wasabi peas, etc.)
- Aim for soft serve consistency, then add your mix-ins

No tips from our lips.

Look beyond the job description to discover what characteristics are going to set you apart from the crowd

VAN BUUREN
CareerBear.com

If you're in the midst of a job search, you know it's important to study every job description to understand what the position requires — and how your skills and experience tie in.

But there are also certain characteristics that are valuable to organizations that you won't ever see in a job description, says Stefan Danis, CEO of Mandrake and NEXCareer.

"What you bring to a job really goes beyond your experience and skills. Organizations today are also looking for an attitude to align with or lift their culture. Those extras are often what make one person more hireable than another."

Here's the list that HR won't share:

Character

"We're constantly faced with having to make decisions and at the end of the day employers want to know that you'll make the right decision for them," Danis says. For example, if the company is in survival mode, they need you to make the right short term — and often difficult — decision. If the company is about growing into a

Minimal drama

- Personal and work lives are more intertwined than ever due to technology and the fact that more people work occasionally from home.

- "So while more work is done from home, organizations are usually not tolerant when someone brings 'home' issues to the office." Drama, intrigue and in-fighting are office staples — don't get involved, says Danis. Your boss won't tolerate office opera either.

A lot of people meet the job requirements but the most valuable employee doesn't settle for meeting expectations, says Stefan Danis — he or she exceeds them. ISTOCK long-term, sustainable business, they want someone with a longer time horizon who won't cut corners. To see if you have the character the company is looking for, the interviewer might ask questions about facing difficult decisions and how you chose to handle them. "They're looking at your moral compass, integrity and follow through."

Positivity

"We all have stories about someone with a negative attitude. I believe more organizations are trying to scan for that. Positivity is not a necessity to do your job, but negativity is toxic to the work environment," Danis says. Valued employees project a happy disposition and a glass-half-full attitude.

Adaptable

Organizations today need people who are resilient and able to change as the company changes direction. "People who resent and resist change are literally a drag on an organization," Danis says. For example, if a company has to suddenly cut costs or lay off staff, "someone who can renew their vows to the organization's new direction almost immediately is very valuable."

Industrial

While companies promise mentoring and training, staff shortages or busy work schedules often result in new employees being left to figure things out on their own. "Let people know that while you value mentoring you acknowledge that it is sometimes difficult for people to follow through on doing it. A valued employee resists blaming the organization; instead, that person figures things out by quickly building an internal support network," Danis says.

Dependable

"Having the discipline to follow through is so important. When asked to do something, a valuable employee never lets you down." You can prove this with examples that show how you successfully completed a variety of often-conflicting assignments on time and on budget.

Job focused

Organizations want employees who do what they are paid to do. Surfing the web has taken over as the number one time waster in the office, says Danis. "It is killing productivity. Turn Facebook off and resist visiting LinkedIn and your stock picks. That should all be done at home."

Camps cater to every imaginable interest

For Metro

Summer camps are a lot like restaurants — there are plenty of them and they all cater to different preferences. Whether it's sports, the arts, technology or something else, there is bound to be a camp to choose.

For budding athletes, the camp offerings at universities such as Saint Mary's and Dalhousie include sports camps. The camps at Saint Mary's include basketball, soccer and hockey, while Dalhousie offers both badminton and field lacrosse camps.

At Mount Saint Vincent University (MSVU), its camps are themed. Perhaps the most curious offering is The Big Apple, which bills itself as helping to show off participants' best talents. The week-long camp runs from July 2-5 and the week is capped off with a talent show, as well as the first flash mob dance at an MSVU day camp.

At NSCAD University, its summer camp offerings are fine arts based and include things such as black-and-white photography, jewelry making and ceramics.

The most offbeat offering is Box Town!, where attendees will construct a town out of cardboard boxes by using large boxes from items such as refrigerators and dishwashers. The camp will include instruction in basic drawing and painting skills.

Individuals may build their own box house or may work in teams to build box mansions," says NSCAD's website. "As well, the entire group will work together to build a school, a hospital, and any other buildings that the group deems necessary. Roads can be drawn on a ground of canvas paper." Box Town! is meant for children nine to 11.

Children looking to discover the world will be interested in the YMCA's Experience the World program. This camp explores "what it would be like to live and play in distant lands," says a brochure. Participants get to try different sports and activities that are integral parts of life at places around the globe.

Lego lovers will be thrilled to discover Legoville at the Creative Kids Education Centre in Hammonds Plains. Attendees construct an entire town out of Lego by creating replicas of famous structures and buildings, but also get to build their own Lego structures.

Finding the right camp takes planning

For Metro

Selecting the right summer camp for one's child comes down to planning ahead and asking the right questions.

To narrow one's search, the first piece of criteria should be finding a camp that aligns with your child's interests. As well, the camp activities should be specifically targeted to meet the interests of its attendees and not be too broad in nature.

"Most summer camps are for children that are in primary through Grade 6 and what a primary (student) and a Grade 6 (student) are interested in are different," says Tara Nickerson, the day camp supervisor at Mount Saint Vincent University (MSVU).

There should be variety in the activities so they don't become repetitive and boring. As well, it's important there be a specific motivation for enrolling in camp.

"What is the goal of the parents and the child for the experience they want to have?" asks Mike LeDuc, the general manager of the Big Cove YMCA Camp.

For example, does the child want to work on their social skills or a specific sports skill?

Parents will want to look into the screening and training programs in place for the staff and ask what certifications and qualifications they have. For example, do they have first aid training or have they had a criminal background check done?

"That has become more of a mainstay as time has gone on, but it's still worth looking into," LeDuc says.

On the subject of camp staffers, the ratio of leaders to campers is another important consideration since it will dictate the amount of individual attention the children receive.

One other important consideration is the timing of the camp.

"You want something that is convenient if you are working," says June Lumsden, MSVU's director of athletics and recreation.

Along these lines, people should look at what policies are in place for early drop-offs and late pick-ups.

One other important scheduling consideration is to pick a camp that aligns with a child's schedule. Otherwise, the camp may be exhausting for them and they won't get the maximum enjoyment out of it.

To narrow one's search for a summer camp, the first piece of criteria should be finding a camp that aligns with your child's interests. TOBKATRINA/VEER

Before parents send their kids off to a day camp it's important they discuss what life at camp is going to be like. Part of this discussion should involve what the routines are, as well as what sort of rules are in place.

"If they can, visit the site," advises Pam Streeter, the director of Creative Kids Education Centre, a Hammonds Plains private school that also offers summer camps.

She says visiting the site in advance helps children visualize where they are going to be and helps them feel comfortable with the setting.

As part of the visit, it is also beneficial if the kids can meet the camp staff.

"It just helps alleviate the anxiety," Streeter says.

As well, parents should speak positively to their kids about the kinds of experiences they will have in the weeks leading up to the camp. By doing this children will pick up on the enthusiasm and excitement and will have a better camp experience if they go into it with a positive frame of mind.

The question of "what's for lunch?" is one that should be dealt with in advance.

"It would be a good idea to know if the camp includes lunch," says Ben Parker, the co-director of SuperNOVA, a Dalhousie University camp that promotes science, engineering and technology.

If children are to bring their own lunches, the parents must know if there are any allergy restrictions. Peanut butter is likely to be outlawed.

It's also important that both parents and kids know what they are to bring to camp, such as the type of footwear and clothing. Given the changing nature of our weather, it's also wise to include a change of clothes. Being sure to bring sunscreen, a hat and water bottle are also wise ideas.

One last key thing to remember is where the pick-up and drop-off location is for the camp, as well as what time the kids are to be picked up and dropped off.

"Sometimes we get parents in the wrong location and that's not fun for anybody," Parker says.

Fucale gets Hockey Canada invite

Zach Fucale's time away from hockey will be short.

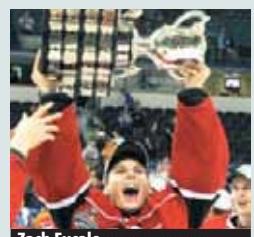

Fresh off leading the Halifax Mooseheads to the Memorial Cup title, Hockey Canada has named the 18-year-old netminder one of 19 invites to the eighth annual Program of Excellence goaltending camp June 13 to 16 in Calgary.

The camp is used to help determine camp invites for both the Canadian junior team and under-18 squad.

Fucale is one of 13 under-20 goaltenders. Centerville's Brandon Whitney of the Victoriaville Tigres is also invited.

Six goaltenders are eligible for the under-18 team, including Halifax's Mason MacDonald, a netminder with the Bathurst Titan.

Stewart back on winning track

Tony Stewart made a late outside pass on Juan Pablo Montoya and held on Sunday at Dover International Speedway to snap a 30-race winless streak.

Stewart hadn't even had a top-five finish this season and was stuck in 20th in the points standings. He took the lead with three laps left in the 400-mile race. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Red, white and blues: Canada foiled again

The Rematch. Morgan leads U.S. over northern neighbours in first meeting since Olympics

It's been 10 months since the United States women's soccer team delivered a dagger into the hearts of Canadians at the London Olympics.

It was clear Sunday that the wound is still fresh.

The cheeky BMO Field fans in Toronto loudly counted off every American goal kick. They booed when Canadian-born striker Sydney Leroux scored and then popped her American jersey at them.

Alex Morgan scored twice and Leroux notched the third as the world No. 1-ranked United States defeated Canada 3-0 in a friendly that was anything but.

Canada's captain Christine Sinclair was less than impressed after the match.

"Maybe not the classiest of moves," Sinclair said of Leroux's gesture. "She scored on us, and an individual can do what they like. I probably wouldn't have done the same, but we move on."

The game — billed as "The Rematch" — marked both the first meeting between the North American rivals since Canada's heartbreaking 4-3 loss to the U.S. in the Olympic semifinals, and the Canadians' first game back home since they won bronze in London.

The Olympic semifinal — which will go down as one of the most memorable in Canadian soccer history — turned on a controversial free kick, awarded when Norwegian referee Christina Pedersen determined Canada's goalkeeper Erin McLeod took longer than the allowable six seconds to put the ball back into play.

On Sunday, 22,453 red and white-clad fans — a record for a soccer game at BMO Field — loudly counted off the seconds, sometimes to as high as 10, each time American keeper Nicole Barnhart took a goal kick.

Two Olympians and a potential top pick in this month's NHL draft were among the winners of the 2013 Ricoh Sport Awards hosted by Sport Nova Scotia on Saturday night in Halifax.

Gymnast Ellie Black of Halifax won female individual athlete of the year, while fellow Olympian Mark de Jonge, a Halifax canoe-kayaker, won top individual male athlete honours.

Among team athletes, Halifax Mooseheads forward Nathan MacKinnon, a 17-year-old from Cole Harbour, was named top for the men, while soccer standout Nkem Ezurike won best female.

Top team went to the province's under-17 girls basketball team that captured silver at nationals.

The other winners were:

Coach of the year — Keiji

Yamanaka of Fall River (gymnastics).

Official of the year — Marie Bowness of Bedford (figure skating).

Association of the year — Valley Speed Skating Club and Royal Nova Scotia Yacht Squadron.

Sport Makes a Difference Award — Luke Allen from Antigonish (Tae Kwon Do) and the Black Youth Ice Hockey Program.

Blackhawks make Quick work of humbled Kings

NHL playoffs. Absence of Mike Richards hurts L.A. offence as Chicago takes 2-0 hold of series

Bryan Bickell and Michal Handzus scored on consecutive shots in the second period, and the Chicago Blackhawks chased goalie Jonathan Quick on their way to a 4-2 victory over the Los Angeles Kings on Sunday night in Game 2 of the Western Conference final.

Andrew Shaw and Brent Seabrook also scored as the rolling Blackhawks grabbed a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven series with their fifth consecutive victory. Patrick Sharp added two assists, and Corey Crawford made 29 saves in another solid performance.

Game 3 is Tuesday night at Los Angeles, where the Kings have won 14 consecutive games, dating to the regular season. The Kings also lost their first two games of the playoffs at St. Louis before winning four straight to eliminate the Blues in the first round.

Jeff Carter and Tyler Toffoli scored for Los Angeles, but the Kings struggled to score while playing without Mike Richards, who was scratched because of an undisclosed upper-body injury. The defending Stanley Cup champions have 29 goals in 15 post-season games.

League fines Hibbert $75K for post-game slurs

Indiana Pacers centre Roy Hibbert was fined $75,000 on Sunday by the NBA for using a gay slur and cursing during his news conference after Game 6 of the Eastern Conference final.

Hibbert also apologized for the comments.

"While Roy has issued an apology, which is no doubt sincere, a fine is necessary to reinforce that such offensive comments will not be tolerated by the NBA," commissioner David Stern said in a statement.

After Saturday night's win, Hibbert ended a response to a question about his defence on Miami's LeBron James with "no homo," a phrase that implies fear of appearing gay. He also called reporters an offensive term.

Game 7 will be played Monday night in Miami.

Horoscopes

Aries

March 21 - April 20

If you have any doubts at all about what you are asked to do today, either by a friend or by someone you work with, just say no. It may make you a bit unpopular but better than you hate yourself.

Taurus

April 21 - May 21

What are you doing to make the world a better place? As Venus, your ruler, moves into the communications area of your chart today you can do something, even if it's only spreading what you believe.

Gemini

May 22 - June 21

Your rivals may be smart but you are in a different league entirely when it comes to brain power and cunning and will outmaneuver them with ease over the next few days.

Cancer

June 22 - July 23

Venus, planet of emotional and material values, moves into your chart today, making this the ideal time to ask yourself what, and who, is most important in your life.

Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

If you compromise your principles once today you will have to compromise them again and again throughout the coming week, so start as you mean to go on and refuse to do anything underhand.

Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

Not everyone can reach your high standards so try not to be too critical if a friend falls short of expectations. Show them where they went wrong but do so in a friendly way.

Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

Venus, your ruler, moves into the career area of your chart today, making it easier for you to get along with people in positions of power. Just be careful they don't use you, as you must benefit too.

Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

You always present a resolute face to all, even when you feel fearful and that will help you this week. You're the one everyone goes to when there's serious work to be done.

Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

Your imagination is active at the moment but watch out you don't go too far by imagining things that don't exist. The line between fact and fiction can often get blurred.

Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

This is a great day for meeting people, especially friends you have not seen in a while or the one you love. Don't linger too long in front of the mirror though!

Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

If you feel that you are being swamped with work then get someone to help you. Yes, of course, no one does as good a job as you but you can't carry on at this pace forever. Slow down.

Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

Mercury links well with Neptune, planet of self-sacrifice today, so find ways to help people. You are at your best when giving – and the universe will give back to you.
